

APE Mobile unveils paperless app with native ERP integrations

5th October, 2017

APE Mobile, an industry leader in the collection of site data for the construction industry, has today announced the native integration with the three market leading construction Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) software packages; Spectrum by Dexter + Chaney, Vista by Viewpoint, and Sage 300 CRE.

APE Mobile is a paperless site app, enabling businesses to improve data collection and compliance via rolling existing site forms into a single app with a simple monthly subscription fee. The ERP integrations allow for seamless, real-time integration of data from the site into the office's financial and project management systems. According to Matt Edwards, CEO of APE Mobile, "Successful construction companies of the future will have to be data driven to win. That's because analytics will be a strategic competitive advantage in this industry." He goes on to note that "there are two parts to being data driven: collecting data and using data."

While construction is one of the least digitized industries in the world, this software connection offers an alternative to the use of physical paper on the job site. The combination of APE Mobile's construction site data and ERP software make it easier for construction companies to ensure accuracy and improve productivity, and ensure efficiency across the board.

Edwards notes, "APE Mobile is enabling that future, today, by providing comprehensive access to data, partnering with major SaaS vendors, and by joining the Construction Open Standards Alliance, a group in the USA building on the efforts of the Association of General Contractors."
